MAYNE TALKS ABOUT RAMSEY DISTRICT

STRONG LEDGES OF FREE MILLING ORE—CLARK BONANZA IS A REAL 'BONANZA'—OTHER LEDGES ALMOST AS BIG THAT CARRY GOOD VALUES.

A. H. Mayne, the man that bought the Clark Bonanza at Ramsey, left the afternoon for the mine with J. B. Van Evert, a New York man, who has been inspecting a number of mines in this and southern districts. Ramsey is on the boom. The earlier history of the camp, that extends only over a period of three months, included a report of a strike that proved to be no strike at all, but after some work was done, the ledges were found in place.

Now 200 men are digging and delving night and day in an effort to get through the cap that covers many of the ledges, and get down to the shipping ore.

On authority of A. H. Mayne, the man who owns the Clark ledge now, it can be stated that the big strike is in a cropping twelve feet wide and twenty feet high at the summit of the outcrop. The strike was made in this outcrop, that is worn down toward the south and disappears some 400 feet away under the volcanic cap that over lies the country.

Across the canyon in which the strike was made, the ledge crops again, and is almost as high as on the discovery spot. It dips into the ground again and reappears on the other side of the second gully, or canyon to the south, in all a distance of about 4,000 feet. The north end dips into the cap at deep angle.

Parallel to this big ledge are five other ledges almost as large, one wider that carries lower values, but all carrying good values and some with shipping ore at the surface. These ledges, like the main Clark ledge dip in and out of the volcanic cap that covers the country.

The values are in free gold, sulphides, and in silver and copper, though the latter is very scarce in the rock, making it a fine free milling ore. Many small ledges run through the district, all dipping to the south west, and the formation is almost exactly that of Virginia City, the ledge running strong a star down as work has been done on them.

The Clark ledge has been called a Bonanza with assays running as high as $1500 a ton. As a matter of fact there are stringers in it the thickness of a deck of cards that go as high as $200,000 a ton, but these, as in all ledges, are only stringers, and do not enter largely into the net value of the ore across the face. The Clark ledge, on mill samples, goes between $50 and $100 a ton, though as stated, a portion of it runs much higher and another portion very much lower, both as to quantity and quality.

Mayne will, as soon as certain legal complications are settled, put a force of miners at work taking out the shipping ore as fast as possible. The legal complications came through the contest of location on a fraction, and not the original Clark discovery, as has been stated. The Clark discovery has three full claims on it, and the ground in contest was a claim thrown transversely across two of the side claims to the Clark discovery claim.

The gulches and canyons of the district have plenty of water for domestic use, though of inferior quality, being impregnated with salts, sulphuric acid and arsenate of iron. Most of the men in the district drink it without harmful result to themselves, but some systems do not take it readily. The Carson river is eight miles below the Clark mine.

The nearest railroad station or side track is Apache, on the Hazen cutoff, between Hazen and Churchill. The mines are located near old Stockton Flat, and it is down this haul from the mines to the railroad. The Ramsey men are endeavoring to make the railroad company see the need of a depot and operator at Apache, and if one is put in, Apache will become the shipping point for the district.

The camp is reached from Carson City, the nearest large source of supply, by good roads, via Dayton and Sutter. It is 37 miles from this city and so far has been tributary thereto. Many of the original locations expire Sunday night, July 14, and there is a prospect of trouble over relocation of the now known to be rich ledges.

Mining men that have looked the ground over say that the indications are favorable for a large shipping and milling camp. The metals can be pursued from the grass roots in many places. Mills, water, and supply places are close, and Ramsey appears to have every requisite for a good camp, when she begins to ship some of the ore already discovered.

THERE IS A DIFFERENCE

The examination of eyes and testing of vision has become a science. The old way was good in its day, but the 20th Century way is the outcome of scientific study and research, we are making wonderful strides in the present age. Do not experiment with your eyes. It is dangerous, go to a specialist who has a perfect knowledge of the anomalies of the eye. Scientific examination and testing of vision FREE OF CHARGE. Glasses fitted if you need them. JURY CLEARED "I AM MORE RADICAL THAN BRYAN IN 10 MINUTES"

MAN FLEES THE COUNTRY IN TERROR—SAYS HE FEARS DEATH AT HANDS OF CASEYS—END OF BIG CASE.

Sherman Bryan was acquitted of the murder of Daniel Casey by a jury in Washoe county last night after ten minutes deliberation.

The verdict was not a surprise to those that followed the case, though the short time it took to arrive at a conclusion caused some comment.

Immediately after his release, Bryan, with his mother went to a hotel where he remained until a belated west bound passenger train came in, when he left for Truckee. From there he will go east to his old home and will remain there for some time.

Bryan professes to fear assassination at the hands of the Caseys, and says that he lives in fear of his life through dread of their vengeance now that he emerges unpunished. He reiterates his story of self defense as the cause of his killing Casey, and says that if another should attack him he will throw up his hands and meet death defenceless, rather than have the blood of another man on his hands.

It is stated by persons who have visited Washoe Valley that Bryan has lived in mortal terror ever since his encounter with Casey, and by some that he went so far as to dress in women's clothes the more completely to disguise himself from those he believed would kill him.

Last night, he lost no time in getting out of the way of possible harm, though he was almost exhausted from his ordeal in court.

The arguments in summing up are said to have been able, and especially that of Atty. Woodburn, of Carson City, but the instructions of the judge who summed up the evidence almost made a verdict of acquittal a foregone conclusion, as the line of self defense was very clearly set up.

Mrs. Casey fainted when she emerged from the court room and the aged mother of Bryan almost collapsed. Bryan himself was immobile, as he has been ever since the trial began, and all the parties to the trial hurried away from the court house, ending one of the most dramatic series of scenes ever witnessed in the old building, the theater of many dramatic scenes.

WM. J. BRYAN DECLARES HIMSELF IN LONDON—SAYS THE SILVER QUESTION IS NOT DEAD—REITERATES FORMER PRINCIPLES.

LONDON, July 13.—Wm. J. Bryan having had the opportunity of reading American newspapers consented to discuss some of the questions which have been raised since he has again become prominent as a presidential candidate.

He said: "I notice that I am now regarded by some as conservative and in order that there may be no misunderstanding on the subject, permit me to say that in one sense I always have been conservative. The democratic policies are conservative in that they embody old precepts applied to new conditions. There was nothing new in either of the platforms on which I stood. We are accused of attacking property because it endeavors to draw the line between honest methods on the one side and predatory wealth and immoral methods on the other. It is to the interests of every honest man that dishonesty should be exposed and punished. Otherwise the deserving are apt to suffer with the undeserving."

More Radical Now

"If however, by the word conservative they mean that I have changed my position on any public questions or moderated my position to corporate aggrandizement, they have a surprise waiting for them. I am more radical than I was in 1896 and have nothing to withdraw on economical questions which have been under discussion."

The Silver Question

"The only question we discussed in 1896 upon which there has been apparent change is the silver question and there has not yet been a change in the advocates of bimetalism but in conditions. We contended for more money and urged the free coinage of silver as the only means then in sight of securing it. The increased production of gold has brought, in part, the benefit we expected to secure from the restoration of silver. The per capita volume of money in the United States is almost fifty per cent greater now than it was in 1895 and benefits brought by this increase have not only indicated the quantitative theory of money, but have proven the benefits of larger amounts of money. No advocate of the gold standard can claim the triumph of his logic."

Gold Production Increase

"I believe in bimetalism and I believe that the restoration of silver would bring still further prosperity, besides restoring par in exchange between gold and silver using countries, but I recognize, as do all other bimetalists whom I have met abroad, that the unexpected and unprecedented increase in gold production has for the present removed the silver question as an issue."

"While the money question has waxed in importance other questions have been taking to the front and to these questions we must apply the same principles we applied to the money question and seek to secure the greatest good to the greatest number by legislation which conforms to the doctrine of equal rights for all and special privileges for none."

"If present indications count for anything that platform is likely to be so plain that no one can mistake and so strong that no enemy of Democratic principles be drawn to the party."

Bryan added that he would discuss the trust, tariff, railroad and labor questions, imperialism and other issues at length when he reached America.

THE NEW FISH HATCHERY WILL START UP SOON

Deputy fish commissioner Hunt, of California, is expected daily, to advise the Nevada commissioners on some new wrinkles in fish hatcheries.

It has been stated that California will co-operate with Nevada in this hatchery. This is not so. The California commissioners, very kindly loaned the Nevada commissioners the services of a man to install the hatchery, on which work will begin as soon as he arrives.

There is to be no trading of spawn except for value received, and that trading will be of benefit to the Nevada hatchery, for California cannot propagate certain kinds of fish, taking the spawn from its own waters.

The hatchery is to be built in a barn belonging to Commissioner Mills which he has donated for the use of the commission. Commissioner Yerington is arranging details with the assistance of Mills, and the two commissioners will not take a cent of the $3000 available for their own profit, time, or services.

When completed, the hatchery will handle about 5,000,000 spawn and will be in operation about ten months in the year. Tanks, heating apparatus and apparatus for testing and handling spawn, to say nothing of a qualified man to take care of it, are among the things for which the money will be spent.

HIS STRENUOUS PLEASURE

A $75,000 automobile rolled through the $60,000 bronze gates and up to the $35,000 winding avenue to the $20,000 marble steps.

Descending from the machine the billionaire paused a moment to view the smiling $500,000 landscape.

Across the $90,000 lawn a $125,000 silver lake lay sleeping in the shades of early evening, and beyond it rose a lordly $80,000 hall, whose costly cloaked with forest at an expense of $200,000, glowed in the last golden rays of the setting sun.

The billionaire sank luxuriously into a $2,000 ivory porch chair and rested his feet on the rosewood railing of the $160,000 veranda.

"It is pleasant," he observed, "to get back to nature once in awhile. After the care and worries of the business day, I certainly love to run out to this quiet little $600,000 country club of ours and taste a bit of simple life. It is good to keep in touch with the soil; for what is man but dust after all?"

Feeling restored, he passed in through the $100,000 doorway to his $1,500 dinner.

ASK YOUR DOCTOR

It may seem to be all nonsense to you, our claim that headaches will disappear after wearing glasses, that the dull headache which has persisted for a year will disappear as if by magic. But it is all true; ask your doctor, and if he says so, then come and be examined for glasses. I make a correct examination and give the correct lenses. Isn't it worth a trial?
